Discussion on the Modernization of Grass Roots Social Governance Guided by Party Building in the New Era

Qing Deng
Xi’an Lintong District CPC Party School, Xi’an, China.

How to cite this paper: Qing Deng. (2023) Discussion on the Modernization of Grass Roots Social Governance Guided by Party Building in the New Era. Journal of Humanities, Arts and Social Science, 7(1), 155-159, DOI: 10.26855/jhass.2023.01.019

Received: December 18, 2022
Accepted: January 12, 2023
Published: February 9, 2023

Abstract

In China's national governance system, social governance is a very important component, and grass-roots social governance is the top priority. From the perspective of national macro governance, grass-roots socialism is the most basic link, and the level of grass-roots social governance will be directly affected by the effectiveness of grass-roots party building. China's socialist construction is facing a more complex international social environment after entering a new stage of development. It has become a key task for the entire Party to comprehensively modernize the national governance system and governance capacity. The grass-roots governance work is the front position of our party's difficult work, and it is also the battle fort to comprehensively realize the socialist modernization governance of our country. The grass-roots governance work provides an important carrier for the extension of the party's leadership at the grass-roots level. Therefore, under the new development situation, we should comprehensively promote the integration of grassroots social governance and grassroots party building, and give full play to the leading role of grassroots party building in the process of grassroots social governance, so as to effectively solve various problems faced by grassroots social governance in the new era.

Keywords

New era, party building, grass roots social governance

Grass roots governance is a very important link in China's national governance system. After China embarked on the development path of reform and opening up, the urbanization construction continued to accelerate, and the social governance structure also continued to achieve transformation and development. Under this situation, China's grass-roots social governance environment has been further improved. Grassroots Party organizations face more diversified service targets in the process of work, and also need to deal with more complex grass-roots demands. In the new era, how can the grass-roots party building work adapt to the development needs of the new era, constantly improve the way of party building work, and effectively improve the quality of party building work to lead the modernization development under the social grass-roots governance. For a long time, the main development direction of China's grass-roots social governance.

1. The relationship between grass-roots social governance and grass-roots party building

1.1 Grassroots Party building provides basic political guarantee for grass-roots social governance

In the report of the 19th National Congress of the Communist Party of China, it was clearly pointed out that the
1. Grass roots social governance provides focus for grass-roots party building

In essence, grassroots social governance activities are to guide mass activities in different institutional relationships through rights regulation and guidance, so as to maximize the public interests of grassroots people. In view of this situation, we must fully ensure that the goal of grass-roots social governance in the new era is consistent with the functional orientation of grass-roots party organizations (Chen & Shi, 2022). The continuous improvement of the level of social governance and public service ability at the grassroots level can make the grassroots party building more targeted and effective, so that the marginalization and weakening of the traditional grass-roots party building work in the construction process can be effectively solved, and the overall coordination ability, service ability and resource integration ability of the grass-roots party organizations can be effectively improved.

Grass roots party building and social governance are mutually reinforcing. The unity and integration of the two is the basis for safeguarding the vital interests of the masses. At the same time, it can also effectively resolve grass-roots conflicts and further consolidate the ruling foundation of the Party among the masses.

2. Problems in Grass roots Party Building Leading Grass roots Social Governance

2.1 The main body of grass-roots social governance is single, and the main body of participation is lack of vitality

There are essential differences between governance and management. Generally, management takes the government public authority as the executive subject, while intelligence requires the joint participation of multiple subjects to achieve multiple co-governance; In the process of governance, it requires not only the participation of government departments, but also the active participation of social organizations, enterprises, residents' autonomous organizations and other parties. There has always been a concept of "strong government, if society" in China's traditional concept. Influenced by this concept, China's social demand is insufficient in the development of social forces under the growing situation. In the past, the Party committee and government departments have undertaken most of the responsibilities in the process of building the social governance system (Wang Yuying, 2022). Although the social governance pattern has been improved actively in the new era. However, the common goal of social governance stated at the Fifth Plenary Session of the 19th Central Committee of the Communist Party of China, "Everyone has a responsibility, everyone is responsible and everyone enjoys", has not been achieved. Especially in the face of the severe situation of the impact of the COVID-19, the strange phenomenon of "cadres and the masses" often apppears in some regions, which also directly reflects the lack of endogenous force in China's social qualifications from another aspect.

2.2 Political Function Weakening of Grassroots Party Organizations

Serving the people wholeheartedly is the basic tenet of the CPC, which is also the value orientation of the Party's governmental organization construction. However, at present, many cadres of grassroots organizations still have some misconceptions in their ideological understanding. They simply understand leadership as service, and even some cadres of grassroots Party organizations let leaders override service. They simply understand helping the masses solve their difficulties as the whole content of the leadership of Party building. Under this misconception, the political function of grassroots Party organizations has been gradually weakened. After the reform and opening up in China, people's material living standards have been greatly improved. As a result, some money worship and hedonism have also emerged in the grassroots party organizations (Chen, 2022). Yes, the patriotism and communist be-

3. The path of Party building leading grassroots social governance in the new era

It is a complex and systematic project for Party building to lead grassroots social governance. To shape this project well, we must find an innovative solution to how the Party organization can condense multiple governance subjects, find the focus of grassroots governance, and at the same time, deeply understand the constraints of the current modernization of grassroots social governance, so as to play the core role of the Party organization in grassroots governance (Hurui, 2022).

3.1 Mobilize the enthusiasm of the governance subject and form the resultant force of grassroots social governance

In the grassroots social governance system, the grassroots party organizations are the absolute core subject, but to comprehensively promote the healthy development of grassroots social governance, we should then strive to eliminate the situation that the grassroots party organizations take the overall responsibility. Grass roots Party or-organizations should play a leading role in grassroots social governance, fully respect the subjectivity and creativity of the grassroots people in the modernization of governance, take multiple measures to fully stimulate the vitality of the people, and comprehensively promote the continuous improvement of the grassroots people's autonomy system. Therefore, in the modernization of grassroots social governance, grassroots party organizations should give full play to the role of the core subject, incorporate social organizations into the normative management framework of party organizations, and also establish party organizations within social organizations. By giving play to the political leading role of party organizations, enterprises and institutions, residents' autonomous organizations, social organizations and other subjects can help the elderly and alleviate poverty, mediate disputes Agricultural production will give play to its professional advantages in employment and other fields, so that social organizations can actively participate in grassroots social governance. In addition, grassroots party organizations should constantly improve the participation mechanism of social organizations with democratic coordination and residents' autonomy, as well as the decision-making and deliberation mechanism. In the framework of grassroots social governance, various matters concerned by the grassroots people should be included, and the enthusiasm and creativity of the masses to participate in social governance should be fully stimulated by introducing various forms of activities such as people's deliberation (Chen Chunyan, 2022).

3.2 Strengthen the construction of grassroots party organizations and play a leading role in politics

All the work of the Party is carried out based on the grassroots organizations. The construction effect of the Grass roots social governance is based on the leadership of the Party. Grass roots Party organizations should constantly innovate in the content and means of learning in the process of promoting grass-roots governance, actively guide the cadres of grass-roots Party organizations and the general public to participate in the learning process of Marxist ideas and methods, and lead the grassroots to fully understand the theoretical achievements of Marxism in the Chinese language in the new era. We should actively pool the basic consensus of entrepreneurship officers. In the process of promoting the work of grass-roots party organizations, we should strictly implement the "three meetings and one lesson" system. At the same time, we should focus on solving the practical problem that the masses are most concerned about, and take multiple measures to comprehensively improve the sense of security, happiness and sense of gain of the grass-roots people. Secondly, grass-roots party organizations should constantly improve the incentive mechanism in the process of entering the water, and effectively rectify the current lax organizational situation. In the process of modernization of grass-roots social governance, grass-roots party organizations and grassroots backbones are leaders. Therefore, each grass-roots party organization should be equipped with organizational cadres with high quality and strong comprehensive ability. Only in this way can the position of the party organization be further strengthened and consolidated in grass-roots social governance, and the political advantages of grass-roots party organizations can be truly transformed into the effectiveness of grass-roots social governance.

3.3 Innovate the guidance mode of party building and promote the refinement of grass-roots governance

In the process of refined governance of grass-roots party building, after making full use of advanced technologies such as big data, cloud computing and artificial intelligence for data research and judgment, it can effectively avoid all kinds of potential risks and subjective things, providing effective technical support for the modernization of grass-roots social governance to truly realize informatization. Therefore, grass-roots party organizations should actively seek the efficient integration of various grass-roots governance resources, and on this basis create a network platform that can achieve full coverage of social governance. For example, in the modernization of grassroots social governance, we should give full play to the main role of grassroots communities, and comprehensively integrate various social governance network resources through the coordination of government departments and other relevant organizations, so as to achieve the intensive management of various resources from a macro perspective. Secondly, in the process of actively promoting the modernization of grass-roots social governance, we should actively break down the information barriers, and all parties' data resources should be truly unified and standardized, so that we can truly promote the high sharing of data resources and information, provide sufficient data support for grass-roots social governance, and then promote the refinement and precision of grass-roots social governance through comprehensive integration of data and data research. In this process, we should attach great importance to the security of information, and resolutely put an end to the problem of information leakage in the process of information sharing, which has a negative impact on the lives of grassroots people. In addition, in the new era, the work of grass-roots party organizations should not be limited to the real space, but should actively explore and use various advanced technologies to further expand into the virtual space. In the case of the in-depth use of information technology, digital survival has become a reality in people's lives. However, the interaction between real space and virtual space makes it more difficult for grass-roots social governance under the continuous promotion of information technology. Therefore, in the new era, grass-roots social governance should also proceed from the dual space of reality and virtual. In addition, in the process of applying various intelligent means, it is also necessary to comprehensively consider the current situation of the elderly's information technology level. The expansion of real space cannot be abandoned due to the application of information technology. In addition, various measures should be taken to guide this group to properly use information technology. Through the above several levels, we can really promote the work of grass-roots party building to achieve refined development, and we can really play a leading role in party building to achieve the refinement of grass-roots social governance.

4. Conclusion

In a word, serving the masses is the core goal of grassroots social governance. Therefore, in the process of promoting grassroots social governance, we should give full play to the leading role of grassroots party building, create a new pattern of grassroots social governance in the new era, integrate grassroots party organizations into the social governance service system, and join people's organizations to continuously improve the service efficiency of grassroots organizations through various ways, only in this way can people's sense of security and happiness be truly improved. In the new era of development, only by constantly improving the innovation and cohesion of grass-roots party organizations in grass-roots social governance can we give full play to the leading role of grass-roots party building and promote the long-term stability of the country.

References

Qu Junzheng, Tian Wanshi. Wen'an Road Community Party building serves the core, serves the culture, and creates a new pattern of grass-roots social governance [N]. Shenyang Daily, 2022-08-19 (011).
